ABSTRACT

A method and computing system working on and/or viewing materials on a computing system in a private manner in a public environment, such as an internet café, a school, common carrier, etc. The computing system is capable of operating in a privacy mode by utilizing a human display interface which allows the user to view displayed material from a computing device while substantially excluding other people from being able to view the material.